

Free Church Registers and related records in the Norfolk Record Office

Introduction

This is a summary of the Norfolk Record Office's holdings of Protestant free or Nonconformist church (i.e., non-Anglican) registers and records of birth/baptism, members and death/burial.

The coverage is county-wide but incomplete, because non-Anglican churches are under no statutory obligation to lodge their records with any local or national archive (except in the case of marriage registers from 1837 onwards). We also hold microfilm copies of Nonconformist registers held by The National Archives. These are indicated in the list with the catalogue reference TNA.

Arrangement

This summary is arranged alphabetically by place, then by denomination and then by any known chapel name or street location. Free churches whose holdings do not include registers are not included.

In the case of the Methodist Church, the circuit (a group of churches served by a shared ministry), rather than the individual society or church, deposits records, and so the entry in this list represents the title or name of the circuit. Early (pre-twentieth century) Methodist registers were circuit records and, typically, would include references to members of all the constituent churches in the circuit. Unfortunately, the exact number and identity of the churches within each circuit changed as the circuits coalesced, divided and, later, reunited, and it is sometimes difficult to pinpoint the correct circuit register to search.

The covering dates do not conceal any gap greater than two years except where indicated by '(gaps)' where the breaks in the sequence are too frequent to represent in a summary.

No distinction has been drawn between original registers and copies of them.

Access Restrictions

Some registers cannot be consulted because of their poor physical condition (described as unfit for production) or because written permission is required to view them. Whenever microfilm copies are available they must be used in place of the original registers.
